

Measures of Central Tendency

Mean, Median and Mode are statistical measures that help us describe the behavior of a collection of data points.

Individual data points are lost in this picture.

Mean is a whole data set divided by length of data set.

Median is a data set grouped from least to most and the middle number is median.

Mode is a data set where the most repeated values matter.